

A note about spatial extent, 3/23/2016: The slide below was used to guide discussion in 2014 regarding the geographic extent of recommendations around Albemarle Sound, with general consensus being to study a broader area but limit recommendations to the “SB area.” The Tetra Tech report, using DWR information, further refines its analysis of SB areas by distinguishing between Albemarle Sound “proper” and the SB/SC tributaries of Albemarle Sound generally named “rivers.” Figure 1 on page 5 of the Tetra Tech report provides a more detailed map. The geographic extent to which future recommendations apply should take this further distinguishing information into account. The map below also mischaracterized the western boundary of Albemarle Sound’s SB waters, which is corrected in the Tetra Tech map.
